What we do during a concussion rebalancing session

“Concussions are so common now days that you had better consider them for our future generation.”

Parents, do you remember when your child had a dazed look in his eyes after his getting whacked beside the head? Does your child suffer from an extreme headache or migraine following the head injury? Is there no memory or recollection of the head injury at all? Does he seem confused?

Chances are that you have a concussion. Concussions are so common now days that you had better consider them for our future generation.

There was this soccer goalie who played on my son's team. They were rep division in the 15 year old category. The team that they were playing against was by far the “dirtiest” team in the whole league. Every play there was some shoving going on. There was this play where the ball was right between the goalie and this opposing player. Both the goalie and the player rushed for the ball. Just in time, the goalie ended up with the ball but just as he grabbed the ball, the other player ended up with his foot planted against his head. Concerned parents made sure that he was ok. But he kept clutching the side of his head, which led us to believe that he was still feeling the effects of the blow to his head. After about ten minutes into the game, he finally signaled to the coach that he needed to be relieved from the game.

He came to see us once his parents heard of what we do. After only one session with us, he said that he felt much, much better.

What we do is acupuncture with or without needles. Without needles is my personal choice just because of the great success that we have had using it. It is done with a laser light pen, where we target various locations within the body to help it to rebalance itself.

Although we do specialize in our allergy relief technique, that is not all we do. We do all sorts of acupuncture too.
